PREPARE FOR HOLIDAY RUSH

CHRISTMAS MAIL MAY SET RECORD, BELIEF.

ADVICE TO SENDERS

Postmaster Hull Gives Rules That Will Insure Safe Delivery Of Parcels.

Plans for handling the largest amount of Christmas mail in the history of the local postoffice are going forward, and Postmaster J. F. Hull is organizing his force of employes to take care of the rush, which will start at the local office in about two weeks.

Harry S. New, postmaster general, in a bulletin to the Maryville office, states that this year's Christmas mailing will likely be the largest in the history of the postoffice department.

"The approach of Christmas warns us to bear well in mind the extraordinary demands that are made upon the Postal Service and in connection with this great holiday of the Christian world. In no country in the world is the custom of Christmas giving so widespread and general as it is in the United States," says the bulletin.

To expedite the handling of Christmas mail and reduce delays and disappointments to a minimum, Postmaster Hull has issued a list of suggestions to parcel senders which should insure safe handling of Chrismas packages.

Early mailing, to relieve the last-minute strain on postal employes, is requested. Other suggestions are:

Wray parcels securely, but do not seal them, as sealed parcels are subject to letter rate postage.

Address parcels plainly, giving street address when possible, using typewriter or ink, never pencil.

Place sender's name and address in upper left-hand corner of address side. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper.

Parcels may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas," and simply seasonal greetings or dedicatory inscriptions may be inclosed with parcel post matter.

Do not inclose letters or any written matter of a personal nature, as doing so will subject entire parcel to letter rate.

Insure valuable parcels.

M. H. S. WINS OVER FAIRFAX

FIRST DEBATE RESULTS IN LOCAL VICTORY.

TWO OTHERS FORFEIT

Burlington Junction and Rock Port Not to Meet Team Here.—Girls Compose Winning Pair.

By a two-to-one decision of the judges, Maryville High School yesterday afternoon won over Fairfax in the first debate of the state league series.

The question for debate was United States participation in the World Court, with Maryville taking the affirmative and the Atchison countians the negative side.

Had Maryville's team lost in the argument they would have been eliminated from the league. Burlington Junction and Rock Port have forfeited to the Maryville team.

In the debate yesterday Maryville was represented by Pauline Nichols and Cleola Dawson. Fairfax was represented by Lorene Walker and Lee Wrinkle. L. L. St. Clair, principal of the Maryville High School, presided, and the judges were J. R. Wallin, J. W. Hake and Miss Violet Eastman, all of the State Teachers College faculty.

The Maryville debating squad has a team prepared to argue the negative side of the issue. This team is comprised of Doris Wallace and Marvin Shamberger. Mrs. Vern Manley is coaching the debaters this year. Last year she assisted in debate work from time to time and has given up the sponsoring of other activities this year to permit her to devote more time to the training of the debaters.

The Barnard debaters were George Hargrave and Nellie Donaldson. Bettie Campbell and Irene Young were the winning pair for Sheridan.

Next Tuesday Barnard will debate at Harmony, and in two weeks the team will go to Conception.

Walter Rickman Buys Young Guernsey Bull

Walter Rickman, west of Hopkins, has recently purchased from Fond du Las, Wis., a young bull, Corium Rose Hamlet, to be used as sire for his herd of Guernseys.

The three nearest dams of the animal averaged 776 pounds of butter fat a year. The sire, Corium Rose des Howards Superb, was winner at ten state fairs, six national dairy shows and a number of district fairs, all in established dairy sections. The dam of Rose Hamlet, Princess Carrie of Fern Hill, has an A. R. record of 13,664.2 pounds of milk, 776.16 pounds of fat. This cow is also the dam of Lady Ola of Fern Hill with a record of 864.2 pounds of fat.

The young bull, Corium Rose Hamlet, is an outstanding individual, without doubt, the best of the breed in this section, and ranks with the best of any breed.

Mr. Rickman has 27 head, mostly registered Guernseys, federal and state accredited for four years.

Only 14,000 Persons in U. S. to Die of Age

Moline, Ill., Dec. 1.—Only about 14,000 of the 116,000,000 present population of the United States will live to die of the only unpreventable disease, namely old age, declared Herman W. Nelson, heating and ventilating expert, in an address here.

Mrs. Lorace Landfather left this afternoon for Novelty, Mo., to join Dr. Landfather, who has located there for the practice of osteopathy. Mrs. Landfather has been visiting her father, W. J. Renshaw, and Mr. Landfather's mother, Mrs. Louella Landfather.

Convict, Innocent, Makes Escape, Then Returns Voluntarily

Jefferson City, Dec. 1.—Fourteen days after he escaped, Ernest E. Wallace, convicted of a crime which authorities say he did not commit, was back voluntarily in the Missouri penitentiary here today.

Wallace, a St. Louisan, was serving a twenty-year term for robbery of the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium at St. Louis. Another man confessed to the crime after Wallace began serving his term. Although an application for a pardon had been made, Wallace escaped two weeks ago. His conscience bothered him, however, he said, and last night he voluntarily walked into the prison.

Until this year only the senior class girls were eligible for Maryvillian queen, but now any one of the four class queens is eligible and the one winning the most votes will be declared elected.

The queens are:

The student who pays $1.50 as part payment is entitled to five votes and only one vote will be given for a payment of 75 cents on the yearbook.

All payments will be made in private to Principal L. L. St. Clair and no student will know how much is given by other students.

Pastor Known Here Goes to Springfield

The Rev. A. J. McClung, who has been pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of St. Joseph and who is well known in Maryville, has resigned to assume the pastorate of the Calvary Presbyterian church of Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. Mr. McClung has preached in Maryville on several occasions and, as moderator of the St. Joseph presbytery, installed the present pastor of the local Presbyterian church, the Rev. William N. Dewar. The Springfield church to which Mr. McClung goes is the largest of that denomination in the Ozarks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bears, south of Burlington Junction, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning.

Poor mother's head is aching, and
Her system feels all wrong.
But, shucks, it is no wonder. She's Been shopping all day long.

HELD CAPTIVE BY RUM SHIP

ASSISTANT TO DRY DIRECTOR IS KIDNAPPED.

HAD SEIZED VESSEL

U. S. Revenue Cutters, Short of Fuel, Left Armed Guard, But Schooner Disappears—Pursuit Starts.

New Orleans, Dec. 1.—J. B. Matthews, assistant to prohibition director, O. D. Jackson of this territory, is believed a prisoner aboard a French rum ship at sea today.

Matthews and an unnamed mechanic were kidnapped early today according to a wireless message received at Mobile and relayed to this city.

The rum schooner is the Aresne J., captured by dry forces several days ago off Southwest Pass in the Mississippi river and taken in tow for the Mississippi river quarantine station by two revenue cutters. Because of a strong wind, a fuel shortage resulted, and the two escorting cutters left Matthews and the mechanic in charge of the boat, and started for Southwest Pass for a new supply.

On returning to where the rum schooner was left in charge of the armed guard, dry agents found the vessel had disappeared and no trace of Matthews and his companion was found.

The cutter Tallapoosa was immediately sent in pursuit of the rum vessel.

Cast Is Announced for Church Play

"The Florist Shop," a Comedy, to Be Given Tomorrow Night by Christian Dramatic Club.

The Dramatics Club of the First Christian Church will present a one-act play, "The Florist Shop," at the church at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. A small admission fee will be charged. The drama is under the direction of Miss Augusta Quell of the Maryville High School.

Besides the play, some specialties have been arranged. These will be given by Ruth Kramer, Virginia Watt, Jack Yeo and Doris Snodgrass.

The cast for the play will be:

Mr. Slovsky, Carl LeRoy Fisher; Miss Wells, the spinster, Cleola Dawson; Maud, the office girl, Doris Wallace; Mr. Jackson, the bachelor, Richard Nelson; Harry, the office boy, Harry Trullinger.

The play is described as a "delightful little comedy success," in which a gum chewing office girl, Maud, conceives the idea of giving away flowers to customers. Maud sends flowers the most expensive in stock, to Miss Wells, the spinster, who has been engaged to Mr. Jackson, a bachelor, for fifteen years. Mr. Slovsky, the owner of the shop, angered at her extravagance, tell her she is fired. But circumstances prevail, interwoven with much humor and everything turns out in fine shape.

Slays Wife, Begs That He Be Killed

Henry Graf, Elvins, Mo., Captured By Posse, Asks To Be "Put Out Of The Way."

Elvins, Mo., Dec. 1.—Held in jail here today charged with the murder of his wife, Henry Graf, 32, continued his pleas that he be killed, too.

Graf was captured by a posse near Elvins late yesterday following the finding of the body of his wife, earlier in the day, with several bullet holes in the body. Graf withstood the posse for almost two hours and, when finally forced to come out of the barn he had used as a stronghold, begged that he be "put out of the way." He is said to have confessed to officers that he killed his wife in a fit of jealousy.

The Grafs, parents of five children, moved to Elvins from St. Louis, 2 months ago.

FERDINAND TO OPPOSE CAROL

JOINS TWO PREMIERS

Country's Most Powerful Statesmen Are Determined To Maintain Regency.

Bucharest, Dec. 1.—King Ferdinand of Rumania has publicly aligned himself with those of his statesmen who oppose the return of former Crown Prince Carol to his former status as heir to the throne.

In a message to the Rumanian parliament, Ferdinand avowed his determination relentlessly to protect the interests of the Hohenzollern dynasty and of the Rumanian nation.

It was recalled that both Premier Averescu and former Premier Bratianu, the latter being the most powerful statesman in Bucharest, recently proclaimed their determination to maintain the law of January 4, in which Carol's renunciation of the throne was confirmed and a regency established to function in the event of the king's early death.

Harding Quoted by Fall-Doheny Defense

President's Message Saying He Approved of Pearl Harbor Contract Is Introduced in Trial.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The Fall-Doheny defense today drew on the words of President Harding to aid in clearing former Secretary of the Interior Fall and E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator, of conspiracy charges.

Harding's special message to the Senate of June 7, 1922—six weeks after the Pearl Harbor contract was made—stating that he knew of the contract, was familiar with the details of the plan and approved it, was produced before the jury by the defense and offered as testimony.

Jury Not Completed in Howard-Luton Case

15-Year-Old Defendant, Charged With Girl's Murder, to Be Tried First.

Bedford, Ia., Dec. 1.—Selection of a jury had not been completed this afternoon in circuit court here, preparatory to the trial of Hal Howard, 15-year-old Creston, Ia., youth, charged with the murder of Pansy Turnbull, 17-year-old Diagonal, Ia., high school girl.

Separate trials have been ordered for Howard and his companion, Terrance Luton, 17, of St. Joseph, Mo., the former to be tried first.

Impanelling of the jury proceeded slowly today. Of seventy men and women, about thirty had been examined, and it was believed that the jury would not be completed before tomorrow noon. Prospective jurors are being questioned as to prepudice and their views as to capital punishment.

Howard and Luton are accused of responsibility for the death of Miss Turnbull, who died after a mysterious automobile ride at Clearfield, Ia., two months ago.

To St. Joseph With Students.

FATTED CALF DOESN'T LURE

WANT PATRONAGE, TOO

Control Of Appointments In Home States Is Demanded, As Well As Committee Posts.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Four more thorns were thrown in the path of Republican Senate leaders today, when the so-called insurgent group manifested indifference about returning to the party fold.

With the Republicans holding only a theoretical majority of 48 to 47 in the new Senate, Senators Curtis and Watson and other leaders have made overtures not only to ousted independent Republicans but to the lone Farmer-Laborite, Senator Shipstead, Minnesota, in the hope of holding control of the new Senate.

Curtis and Watson have offered to restore Senator Frazier, independent Republican, North Dakota, to chairmanship of a committee and give him all possible party favors.

Frazier and Shipstead, however, indicate no immediate intention of embracing the Republican organization. The United Press is informed reliably that Frazier has recently been antagonized by the appointment of C. F. Mudgett as United States marshal in his home state.

Believing he has the upper hand, Frazier has given Republican leaders to understand that he must receive state patronage if he is to be "accepted" by the party organization. He was ousted from the organization two years ago with Senators Brookhart, LaFollette and Ladd for joining in the LaFollette presidential movement.

Shipstead is keeping discretely silent and is proud of holding the balance of power between Republicans and Democrats on the closely drawn Senate lineup.

Sedalia School Boys on Sixty-Day Parole

The boys, whose names were withheld by the board, were said to have had liquor at the Jefferson City-Sedalia game in Jefferson City and at a dance following the game.

SEEING AMERICA

Queen Marie, as she herself observed, before she sailed for home, has not "seen America" as she wished to do. She has seen many thousands of miles of American landscape and millions of American people. She has seen our great cities and many of our smaller ones. She has seen art museums and churches and factories and office buildings and hotels and theaters. She has seen more automobiles than she knew there were in the world. She has seen rich men and women, social leaders, political leaders, business leaders. She has even seen some humble, ordinary folk, though mostly at a distance, in an indiscriminate crowd. But—

The Queen has not seen Americans in their homes, living the normal life, doing normal things in a normal way. She has not seen normal manners. She has not met typical Americans as they are. She has not seen real American life as it is lived from day to day.

How could she? Royalty is necessarily lifted above other folk, necessarily deferred to, necessarily flattered and lied to, even with the best intentions, and kept from seeing people and things as they really are.

But even if the queen had come to America as an ordinary visitor comes, how could she see us normally, and come to know us intimately, in a flying trip? Most of us who spend a lifetime here do not know America and Americans, though we learn enough to smile at the superficial knowledge of foreign tourists.

This very fact should bring a sense of humility to the great army of Americans who visit other lands. How many of our tourists really "see" Europe, or any important part of it? How can we understand foreign lands any more than casual visitors can understand ours?

What's a home without a comfortable chair or couch?

The only thrill worth while is the thrill that comes from making something out of your self and making yourself worth something to your community or state.

While a large body of men are engaged in selling autos, another company is being formed to sell the mileage all over the Mississippi Valley through a drivurself organization.

Political friends are already urging A. W. Nelson, former Governor Gardner and Judge Cockrell for the democratic nomination for Governor in 1928. There is considerable talk also about Senator Al Gossett of Kansas City. He has impressed leaders as a man of ability and good judgment and he has a strong campaign argument in the ever present cob pipe. Mr. Nelson has announced that he will not run if there is to be a contest for the nomination but would accept without a contest.

Rum Trust Boycotts Supply From Bahama

"Doctored" Grain Alcohol No Better Than "Stuff" Cooked on Kitchen Stove, Liquor Lords Decide.

Washington, Dec. 1.—There may be honor among thieves, but, according to Treasury department authorities, there's little or none as between bootleggers and their supply sources.

Because of this, rum smuggling from the Bahamas is decreasing. The American "rum trusts" have put most of the Bahama sources of supply on the blacklist, because, according to prohibition enforcement authorities, the Bahamas were "doctoring" grain alcohol and selling for the genuine stuff.

Thereupon "high grade" customers complained that the "imported stuff" was little or no better than the bran cooked on the kitchen stove, and trade suffered.

Treasury men said the rum chiefs in the states have established a virtual boycott on the Bahama supply sources because of "unfair tactics," and are now turning to made in America moonshine for much of their supplies.

They had eloped from New York. Mrs. Burch is the wife of Marson's son-in-law, Lyndon Walkup Burch, who was left in New York with his mother, Mrs. Marson. Iowa Bank Failures Bring Back Medieval System of Barter

Mallard, Ia., Dec. 1.—Mallard today was virtually a perfect democracy, with no currency, and until cash comes back into circulation pocketbooks and trouser pockets will be useless things.

All banks of the county have closed for reorganization.

Pending reorganization of the banks, the old system of barter has come back into vogue. Services are being traded for the necessities of life, following the financial collapse a week ago. Farmers truck their products in to town and leave with merchandise and essentials.

Level headed business judgment has averted a crisis. Banks are reopening following the action of business men in scouring the countryside, securing signatures of depositors, who agreed to leave 65 per cent of their funds in the bank untouched for given periods.

OUR COLLEGE

What The Students Out On The Hill Are Doing

Interest at the College this week is divided between the opening of the winter quarter and the approaching basketball season. Freshmen at the institution registered yesterday and attended classes today, while sophomores and upperclassmen are matriculating today and will begin their class work tomorrow. The enrollment this afternoon indicated that about the same number of students will be registered as during the fall quarter completed last week.

Basketball practice will start Monday afternoon, according to H. Frank Lawrence, director of physical education. Mr. Lawrence has issued his first call for Monday, and already most of the aspirants for the team have drawn their suits and shoes from the storeroom at the gymnasium.

Many students and townspeople are already talking of a basketball championship, basing their hopes on the fact that the team this year will be almost the same as the championship five of last year.

But Coach Lawrence doesn't look at it in that way. "Abie" Blomfield, who played guard and jumped center last year, was lost by graduation, and the Bearcat mentor is wondering where he will find a successor. Besides being an able back guard, Blomfield stood somewhat taller than the water tower and was a great asset in the jumping department. "Shorty" Lawrence is going to miss the added inches of height in the jumping department.

"And furthermore," the coach argues, "we have to develop another guard besides Captain Joy before we can hope for even a consistently winning team.

"There are about three other teams in the conference which are going to give us a whale of a run for our money, and it will be unfair for the fans to look forward to going through the whole conference season of twelve games without a defeat."

In this morning's Kansas City Times there was a story to the effect that the Springfield team will be weak this year and that there is a lack of material at the Southwest Missouri school.

"All bunk, all bunk," was 'Shorty's' comment. "They'll have as strong or stronger a team than we will have, and you can take my word for that."

At any rate, the Green and White will have Captain Joy, Burks, Berst, Hedges, and O'Banion back as letter men. In addition there are a half-dozen men of outstanding reputations out for the team.

Time alone will tell.

The class in advertising at the College, taught by L. M. Eck, went to St. Joseph this morning on an observation trip. This class was the guest of the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce at luncheon today. Uel W. Lamkin, president of the College, also went to St. Joseph and spoke at the luncheon.

St. Patrick's Plays Barnard Friday Night

Local School Will Open Its Second Season With Six Old Men Back; Good Material.

St. Patrick's High School basketball team will play its initial game of the season with Barnard, Friday night at Barnard.

This year's team is a pretty fast bunch, according to Ernest Ellis, coach of St. Patrick's team, and the team's second year promises to be a good one.

Six old men are back as the nucleus of the squad this year and it is out of this number that the probable line-up in the Barnard game will be taken. Albert Kill will play center. Cummins was center last year. C. Cassell and B. Conway, guards, subs of last year will step up to the regular team this season and will play in the opening game. Louis Doffing and Leo Myers, forwards of last year, will hold their old places again this year. Ambrose O'Day is another old man back. Among the new men out for basketball are Sherlock, Berg, Kill, Merrigan and O'Day.

Burlington Junction and Hopkins games also are scheduled for this season. The schedule is not completed, Ellis said.

Mrs. W. R. Wells has returned from Kansas City where she visited her daughter, Mrs. Harry Fasken, and her sister, Mrs. O. W. Nixon.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE OF LEAGUE CONVENES AT GENEVA.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

By HENRY WOOD

Geneva, Dec. 1.—The Council Committee of the League of Nations convened here today for the purpose of whipping into shape still one more aspect of the agenda for the international disarmament conference which the League hopes to summon next year.

It was by no means certain, however, that the committee would not find itself in a maze of difficulties outside of the actual scope of the meeting.

The committee is composed only of official representatives of the states that are members of the League council, and as such is the only League organism for disarmament on which the United States is not represented.

As a result of the marked differences that have arisen between the American disarmament delegation and those of various European powers the American disarmament delegation and those of various European powers on all of the other preparatory, military, naval, and aerial disarmament commissions and subcommissions of the League, rumors were flying today that an effort might be made before the Council committee to transfer the task of preparing the final agenda of the disarmament conference from the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission to the Council Committee itself.

As the United States is represented on the former and not on the latter this would simply mean the freezing out of the United States from any final say as to what shall go on the agenda of the final disarmament conference.

Whether this effort will actually be made is by no means certain, but no secret is made of the fact that the divergencies between the American delegation, and those of the French block, especially on the questions of naval disarmament, regional agreements, etc., have become so pronounced as to risk the success of the eventual conference if some means is not found of overcoming the difficulty.

The Council Committee is now composed, as a result of the recent reorganization of the League Council, of England, France, Italy, Germany, Japan, Chili, Colombia, San Salvador, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, China, Poland and Rumania. Out of this number France can count on the absolute support of all her European military allies and their associates including Belgium, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Rumania, while Italy also has supported the French thesis on most naval disarmament questions.

The one thing, however, which would probably most prevent any effort to freeze out the United States by transferring the preparation of the disarmament conference agenda from the Preparatory Disarmament Commission to the Council Committee is the rule relative to unanimity.

Any recommendation to this effect which the committee might make would in the end have to be unanimously approved by the council, and unless the United States made it known through England or some other friendly power that she is no longer interested in the League's disarmament effort, it is considered certain that the proposition would never secure unanimous support before the council.

Aside from this possibility the Council Committee will take up those aspects of the disarmament problem that have to deal only with the League of Nations. All of the others, such as military, naval, aerial, economic, and financial have already been dealt with by technical commissions and subcommissions on which the United States has had representation.

One of the first questions to be handled by the Committee will be a French proposition providing for the establishment of methods and regulations that will permit of the speediest possible action by the League Council in the event of war on threats of war.

The proposal also covers not only the meeting of the council but the drafting of recommendations for the military assistance provided for in Article of the Covenant as well as measures calculated to prevent the breaking out of hostilities. In addition a study is to be made of the measures that would enable the Council to give most rapidly to an attack state the economic and financial help which might be necessary and also to determine the composition and procedure of any committees which the League might use to assist it for this purpose.

France insists that all of these points must be established before any state can decide to what extent she may disarm without lessening her national security.

The committee will also investigate the possibility of securing special cable, telegraph, telephone and radio facilities for the League in the event of war or threat of war, in order to insure by the speediest possible intervention by the League.

Finally, the committee will also have before it the Finnish proposition to the effect that an international war chest should be created so that states instead of being obliged to maintain large, standing armaments for their defence would be in a position to secure armaments quickly on the open market in the event they are attacked.

The committee expects to complete its work in time to report to the League council at its next session on December 6. The latter will have before it at that time the reports of all the militrry, naval, aerial and other disarmament subcommissions, and will thus be in a position to decide whether the disarmament can be convoked for next year or not.

The farmers are just nicely commenced gathering their corn in this vicinity. The yield is not quite so much, but quality better.

The general complaint of the people of this community is that their taxes are about ten per cent higher than last year. By the time the farmer gets his hired help and taxes paid, there isn't much left for anything else with corn selling at 55 cents.

George Norance arrived in Sheridan Monday for a visit with old friends. He resided a number of years ago on the place northeast of Gaynor, where Harve and Fletcher Bainum now live.

As rivals for the favor of JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, ERIC WATERS, rebel senior, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, head of the respective factions of radicals and conservatives in the college community.

Judith defends Eric against the accusations of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN, that Eric dealt in poison liquor from which two students have died.

MYRA ALDRICH is fond of Judith but also jealous of her.

"KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, is trying to blackmail Mrs. Timothy Brown, having discovered that she met a man friend on a week-end trip to the city, without the dean's knowledge.

Judith also knows Mrs. Brown's secret, and has befriended her. She asks Eric to keep Shea from hounding Mrs. Brown.

Judith agrees to stay in Myra's sorority house to supervise the servants during the Christmas holidays, having no relatives to visit.

On Christmas Eve, she goes to the movies and returns to find the house dark and forbidding.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The great house stook stark among its bare trees. Judith turned and looked back down the road. The little red tail light of Miss Snow's coupe was disappearing around a corner.

When she reached the lamp post on the corner, she looked at her watch. It was only a quarter of ten. A stiff breeze rushing up the hill behind her caught Judith's skirts and whipped them about her knees, and grated the bare branches of the trees against one another harshly.

It was growing colder minute by minute. Judith ducked her head against the wind and went up the front walk. The houseman and the cook were evidently in bed, for the basement windows were as dark as the other panes.

Through the glass sidelight of the door, Judith could see that the great hall was in pitchy darkness.

She drew the key from her pocket and unlocked the door. The next moment she was inside the hall, reaching for the electric switch. A flood of light brought back her courage.

Judith shut the door and bolted it. She glanced around the living room before she went upstairs, and saw everything as she had left it. She switched on the light in the upper hall from the foot of the stairs.

The house was very cold, and Judith took a step toward the cellar steps, to summon the houseman to make a fire. But she thought better of it and went upstairs. There was enough kindling in the basket by her fireplace to make a small blaze, and she set to work to start it. It burned sullkily, with many splutterings and feeble flames.

Judith heard a shutter or door banging somewhere in the house and went into the upper hall to listen. From her post by the stair rail, she could look down into the lower hall through a well around which the colonial staircase curled.

The banging ceased and she returned to her dying fire. While she was working with it, the telephone bell rang with a violence that set up echoes in all parts of the still house. Judith ran to the extension telephone just outside her bedroom door, and Dean Snow's deep contralto voice answered her.

"I was a little anxious about you," said the dean, "and wanted to be sure you reached home safely. It's going to be a bad night. The moon is going under and little sleet arrows charged in our faces all the way home.

"I hated to see you start off up that road alone, but I didn't know what to do. If I had missed that one chance to be towed, we might still be sitting in the road."

"Never mind about that," said Judith. "I got here safely."

The conversation cheered her, so that she hummed a nameless little tune as she went back to hr room. Sh slipped into a woolly robe and sat down before the tiny fire, with a new magazine in her hand.

Suddenly, the struggling flames blew to one side and went out. Judith looked around. She had left the door open and a great wind was rushing up from the lower floor. The banging had recommenced. It seemed to be in the rear of the house.

She went out to the head of the stairs to listen. The noise grew still louder. She switched on the lights in the lower hall and descended the stairs.

By the door leading to the cellar steps she saw a bell button. She pressed it once, and then again. She could hear it ringing loudly through the servants' rooms below, but there was no response. The bolt on the door was not in place.

She pushed the bolt into its socket and rang again. There was still no answer.

For a moment, Judith stood paralyzed, leaning against the door. The empty house seemed full of a thousand whispers. And through them all beat the monotonous banging in the rear.

Jerking her head up, Judith opened the door into the kitchen, and stood aghast. The half light from the hall shone on the back door, standing wide open, with a great rush of wind sweeping through the room.

Judith made for the string that controlled the electric light. The door swung to behind her, and the kitchen was in darkness. She made wild windmill passes in searching for the cord, but it eluded her.

She ran back to the inner door and pushed it open. There was a little stool nearby, and this she placed against the door. The cord was now easy to grasp, and in a moment the kitchen was flooded with light. Judith rushed at the outer door and slammed it. Then she shot the bolt and turned around.

By the coal range, on the floor, lay a pile of furry little rabbit pelts. The shot gun was propped against the wall.

The pantry door stood half open. With a sudden gesture, she picked up the gun and cautiously pushed the pantry door farther open with the end of it. The closet was bare, and she laughed a hysterical little laugh at sight of herself in a small mirror on the wall.

Then, holding the gun before her, Judith went through the hall into the living room and thence to the sun parlors and the dining room. She turned out lights behind her as she went and switched them on ahead. There was no one in the lower rooms, at any rate.

She took a slightly firmer grasp on her weapon as she mounted the stairs. The bedroom doors still stood open, on vistas of untidiness in half shadow. Judith explored them all, peering into closets and under beds. She locked the door to the attic stairs, and went back to her room.

It was chill and damp. The fire had given up entirely, and there was no more wood in the basket. Judith examined the door of the room. There was no key in the lock. She searched the other doors in the bedrooms, but not a key was to be found.

When she went back to her room, she carried the small straight desk chair to the door and propped it under the knob, as a brace. Then she sat down weakly on the bad.

She was startled by the ringing of the telephone again. But she sank back upon the bed and listened to it without moving.

The shrill bell tore the silence again and again, and still Judith sat motionless. At last it stopped, only to start up in a few foments, with increased violence.

At last Judith rose unsteadily and crossed the room. She pushed the chair aside and opened the door. When she took down the receiver there was no answer. She rattled the hook and a peevish voice replied, "There's no one on your line now. Will you excuse it, please?"

"But the phone's been ringing for fifteen minutes," said Judith, sharply.

"The party that called you has hung up," replied the voice.

Judith went back to her room and propped the chair against the door. She had set the gun up beside the small table near the bed, and now she moved it so that its muzzle pointed away from her.

She was shivering with cold, and the bed had only two blankets. Fine frozen drops began to beat a tattoo on the window panes, and the howl of the wind became a prevading roar. Stepping out of her slippers, Judith pulled the blankets and slipped into bed in her clothes.

After a moment, she looked at her watch. It was midnight. The fury of the wind grew, until she could hear the house creaking in its joints and feel its shuddering, as she lay in bed.

A welcome drowsiness came at last, shutting out the cold and dark and loneliness. Then she started up in bed. Sounds struck her ears that were neither of the wind nor of the sleet. She leaned against the drawn window blind. The sounds were shuffling footsteps on the concrete floor of the porch beneath her windows.

A tragic night lies ahead of Judith. There is a shot in the dark and—but read it in the next chapter.

School Tax May Be Put on Movie Films

State Administration Is Considering Levy Of $10 On Each Picture Entering Missouri.

Jefferson City, Dec. 1.—A state tax may be placed by the next legislature on the moving picture industry to provide a part of the 7 million dollars needed annually for a permanent education fund for Missouri.

H. O. Harrawood and George W. Crowder, assistants in the office of the attorney general, who are preparing the administration's school fund bill to be presented to the legislature in January, are investigating the feasibility of a tax on films. An investigation is being made of the Connecticut law where $10 is levied against every film entering the state. Educational and a few other films are exempt.

"The film tax has an advantage over some others suggested," Mr. Harrawood said today, "because it is easy to collect. Virtually all films exhibited in Missouri are distributed from Kansas City and St. Louis."

The original plan was to obtain a permanent school fund with state taxes on tobacco, amusements and a severance tax on the mining industry.

CHINA FUTURE BATTLEFIELD

MANCHURIA IS THE "GRANARY OF ASIA."

FOOD IS PROBLEM

Cultivation Is Only Started In Rich Agricultural Section of the Orient.

EDITOR: This is the first of a series of articles by a staff correspondent of the United Press concerning one of the richest areas and greatest potential battlefields—economic, political and possibly military—in the world today. The writer has traveled over the most important points of the area in question, and this series is designed to give facts, brief pictures, and historic background on South, Central and North Manchuria. The first article is written from Peking, capital of China; others will be from Dairen, South Manchuria; Mukden, Central Manchuria; and Harbin, North Manchuria.—United Press.

By RANDALL GOULD.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Peking, Dec. 1.—When China 'breaks into the headlines' of American and European newspapers, it is usually in connection with some spectacular happening involving a handful of foreigners or at most the embattled mercenaries of two nondescript Chinese generals.

To experienced observers actually on the scene, however, the important news of the Far East—and to considerable extent, of the world—is the small trickle of information coming down from Manchuria.

For Manchuria is the great world battlefield of the future, they are convinced. It is destined to be the scene of economic and political conflict involving millions of people. Quite possibly it may be the scene of military conflict as well—conflict beside which the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-5, which was fought on this very soil, will seem like the mimic warfare of toy soldiers.

The world must eat. Year by year the world's food problems grow more acute. Manchuria is the great food-producing area of the Far East—an area on which cultivation has as yet little more than started, but an area which will be prized increasingly as the years pass.

For centuries Manchuria has been known as "the granary of Asia." oSme day it—with the great Siberian territory into which it runs, and on whose transportation lines it has an important geographical point of vantage—may well be known as "the granary of the world." Such a place is worth having and worth fighting to have. There has been fighting for Manchuria already; there is concealed conflict aplenty at the present time; but the real conflict looms in the future, at what date none can say.

Manchuria's full resources are even yet far from being fully realized. The "leased territory"—has wonderful possibilities as a fruit-growing region, for example. Apples, pears, grapes and peaches flourish there. Cotton has been tried out with similar success, and the Manchurian Cotton Cultivation Association formed by the Japanese in 1924 plans to bring about a harvest of 110,000,000 pounds of seed cotton from 200,000 acres within the ten years beginning with 1925. The apple crop of the Leased Territory for 1925, was 3,460,000 pounds, by the way; the total crops of grains, vegetables and fruits for 1925 in this same Leased Territory (the only part of Manchuria where accurate figures can be had, due to Japanese systems) reached 8,700,000 bushels, 102,000,000 pounds, and 3,700,000 pounds respectively.

The tremendously important seva bean, one of the chief exports of South Manchuria, deserves a chapter in itself. Bean oil, edible bean curd, bean cake for fertilizer and a score of other things might be mentioned in connection with this, and Japanese scientists are busy working out new uses. Wheat, coal, kaolian (a staple grain used in a variety of ways by the Manchurian natives) and wild silk are among other exports.

All this may seem dull stuff; but whereas the wars of the past may have hinged on delicate points of national honor, the wars of the future are apt to hinge on just such lists of foodstuffs and other commodities from any given territory. And Russia, and China, at least, are increasingly aware of the value of that rich agricultural prize called Manchuria.

China, chaotic and war-torn, allows Marshal Chang Tso-lin to operate a virtual kingdom in Manchuria with Mukden as his capital. But Chang Tso-lin, only one man after all in spite of his occasional rises in Chinese affairs must needs allow himself to be dominated by those foreigners from whose proximity he cannot escape and upon whose aid he is dependent. So at various times we see this Chinese military man signing a treaty with Soviet Russia or dealing openly and covertly with Japan. He likes neither but can see no alternative under the circumstances.

In studying the situation in Manchuria one can best understand the country and its background by progressing from point to point. Let us travel, then, first to the Japanese port of Dairen in South Manchuria; next up to the Japanese-Chinese city of Mukden; and finally to the Russo-Chinese city of Harbin in North Manchuria. In succeeding articles I shall carry the story through these colorful and immensely significant localities.

TIME NOW TO ACQUIRE LAND

COOPERATION NEEDED

Agriculture Remains "Sick," But a Great Power Lies Dormant, Chicago Conference Is Told.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Agriculture remains "sick," in need of teamwork among agricultural organizations and liberal state and national legislation, but the present is a good time to invest in well placed, low priced rural real estate. Jewell Mayes of Jefferson City, Mo., president of the national association of commissioners, secretaries and departments of agriculture, so declared in his annual address yesterday.

"Since the end of 1918—especially since 1920—the farming business has been plowing through the burning embers of a world laid waste by war, the only business in the United States that built food factories without cost-plus or other guarantee against the aftermaths of peacetime," he said.

Whisper of Relief.

"The post-war shrinkage of land and livestock has bankrupted its hundreds of thousands. Land values are still at low ebb, but whispering of better promise."

Farming, a business which naturally tends to develop individualism, lacked teamwork more than any other, he said, in stressing the need for concerted efforts.

He spoke of the "ever-present dangers of agricultural organizations taking sides in partisan politics," but observed that the farmer had "too generally been asleep at the switch at elections, in legislatures and in congress, the producers often getting sniped because of lack of teamwork."

Seek Crumbs That Seldom Fall.

Unorganized, the farmers have played the part of crawling giants, he said, halting and stammeringly begging for the crumbs that too seldom fall from the banquet board of state and national legislation.

School textbooks should carry more of country life and "less of war and wantonness," he said.

He referred to the cotton situation as one of the "gravest tragedies in American agriculture," and urged the association to devote more time to the cotton situation.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Shelton of Wilcox were shoppers in Maryville today.

The Democrat-Forum and Tribune

The entire family will appreciate it for the whole year. Daily it carries news items, features, articles, sport items and comics that make it a looked-for arrival. You who read it daily know how much agony "Little Orphan Annie" is going through just now. Your friends should be interested in Annie, too, and should be reading about her every day. That same friend would doubtless be interested in the dry, homely wit of old "Aunt Het." And of course the columns and columns of County, State and National news events of the day.

Why not have it sent to your home? Or if you are a subscriber, to your friend!

Skyscraper to Be Only 12½ Feet Wide

St. Louis, Nov. 30.—An office building, ten stories high and 135 feet long, but only twelve and a half feet wide, will be erected on a downtown St. Louis corner, contractors in charge of the project announce.

Fifty-six offices are planned for the narrow rectangular structure. It is estimated that annual rentals aggregating $62,000 may be derived from the building. It will be modelled after the narrowest apartment building in New York, which is 12 stories high and 9 feet wide.

Burlington Junction

(J. Howard Thompson, Correspondent)

The "Home Coming" at the Christian church last Sunday at the close of the morning service was a success every way. Aside from the members and friends immediately connected with the church many invited guests were present. The dinner was all and even more than was expected on such an occasion, and the social hour was productive of a warm friendship and a delightful fellowship. The writer with his wife, were especially invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caldwell had a real and pleasant surprise last Sunday morning, because of the arrival at their home of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Johnson and two children, Juliette, and Teddy, of Indianola, Iowa. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Caldwell are sisters and the meeting was a delightful one. They are the daughters of Dr. Calhoun, a former pastor of the Presbyterian church in Burlington Junction, and of course have many friends here who are always glad to see them again. This is the first visit of Mrs. Johnson in this community for more than a year.

Miss Evelyn Hackett, daughter of our townsman, Edward Hackett, and who is a student in the Teachers College in Maryville, spent Thanksgiving and the week-end at the home of her parents, returning to her school duties Sunday afternoon. She graduated from the Burlington Junction high school last May, and is giving herself to added preparation for her life work.

Paschal Monk, one of our choicest young men, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Monk, a student in the Teachers College in Maryville, spent the week-end at the home of his parents and attended services at the Methodist church, and as usual, delighted the large audience present with his solo singing. Paschal is always a welcome guest.

J. F. Newman of Savannah is in town at this time visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Byers. Mrs. Byers is his daughter. Mr. Newman lost heavily in the bank failures in his home town, which like many others is feeling it keenly.

Harold Ragsdale who is in charge of the circulation department of the Kansas City Journal and Post of Kansas City, came home for a Thanksgiving dinner with his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Ragsdale. He returned to his work in the city Sunday afternoon.

Man has no better friend than his faithful dog. Senator James Reed recently announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election, when his present term had expired, giving as his sole reason for such action that he wanted to get back to his home and his dog. Likewise, Senator-elect Hawes has a peculiar friendship for his blooded bird dogs. So as these men and others have such fondness for the canine family, Prof. Harry B. Rutledge, the superintendent of our high school, has caught the spirit of real friendship for such and recently became the owner of a blooded English bull pup of some distinction. This dog is an honor to any household, and will doubtless have the best of care and friendship from both Prof. and Mrs. Rutledge. We certainly envy them in their ownership of such a pet.

Mrs. Lulu Peden of Santa Fe, New Mexico, is here the guest of Rev. and Mrs. D. B. Warren. The two families have been great friends for many years.

Rev. and Mrs. D. B. Warren entertained the following persons at a Thanksgiving dinner: Mrs. Lulu Peden of Santa Fe, New Mexico, Mrs. Bidwell and son of Maryville, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carlson, also of Maryville, and Trimble Warren, a student at the Teachers College of Maryville. All report a good time socially.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vance entertained as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shelton, and Mrs. Zora Duncan and her two daughters, Evelyn and Frances, all of Clarinda, Iowa. Mrs. Shelton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vance.

The Sunday night audience was unusually large, they having come to hear Dr. Emmett L. Robinson, the district superintendent. This was Dr. Robinson's first appearance in Burlington Junction in his official capacity, and seemed at his best, and preached a really great sermon. The entire service was of unusual interest. At the close of the preaching service, he with the pastor held the first quarterly conference.

Rev. R. E. Musgrave, pastor of the Christian church in Maryville, was in town Sunday afternoon and gave an address of unusual interest on Christian Unity, at the Christian church, to a fair sized audience. Rev. Musgrave is a fine fellow to meet. He made a fine impression on all with whom he came in contact.

Last Sunday night, as Rev. J. Howard Thompson went to his hen coop to close his birds in for the night, he found an opossum, in the coop as comfortable as you could expect, seemingly awaiting the time when he could feast upon a good fat hen. In the excitement which immediately followed, he made his get away and has not been seen since.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Rees were called to Skidmore last Sunday on account of the death of Mrs. Linville of that town. Mrs. Rees is a niece of Mrs. Linville's. They returned home on the evening train.

The automobile has become a matter of practicality and utility in fact. On Tuesday night on my return home from Maryville, I met four great trucks filled with hogs, fat and ready for the market on the way to St. Joseph, to be placed on the early Wednesday morning market. The farmers in these parts will make the trip to the stock yards in South St. Joseph in about four hours when the roads are good. This kind of transportation is taking many dollars from the freight funds of the railroads.

Have you, dear reader ever had the experience of driving at night, with your lights on and meet a member of the feline family coming facing you. If you have, you have seen a most unique sight, as the eyes of the cat are like two huge balls of fire. Tuesday night, between seven and eight o'clock, the writer met four such, as he was returning home from Maryville.

We spent the entire forenoon, Tuesday, in the neighborhood, three or four miles north and a little west of Maryville, canvassing for the hospital, in St. Joseph, and in a number of instances, the farmers and their wives spoke in the highest possible commendation of the Burlington Junction items for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune. The best we can say for such kindness is "thank you."

It was my sad duty to assist in laying away of Jesse T. Watt, Tuesday afternoon. We had known him a long time. His death was tragic, sudden and unexpected. The writer read the Scripture, led in the opening prayer, and prepared and read the obituary. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to his precious little daughters, aged father and mother, his sister and three brothers. Rev. Musgrave, pastor of the Christian church, preached the sermon.

These fine days are being improved by the farmers of the community in harvesting their corn crop. Some few are done gathering the crop, others have "hogged" the crop, and still others are getting great cribs full. It is yielding much better than it was thought at first it would. The selling price for new corn is quite gratifying. Much of it, however, is being fed to hogs and cattle on the farm.

There are a half dozen of our older people who are quite sick at this time, with but little hope of a recovery. One recently fell and broke her hip, another suffered a stroke of paralysis three months ago, another is suffering of cancer, still another has been an invalid for the past ten years, and still another is gradually weakening on account of senility. One by one we are surely completing our life's program.

The canvass for the new Methodist hospital located in St. Joseph, goes steadily on with additional cash and subscriptions at the close of each day. The writer spent Tuesday of this week working among the farmers north and west of Maryville, and secured a commendable pledge or cash from every person he canvassed. It makes no difference how hard our local problems seem to be, humanity is always willing to heartily support a worth-while program or institution of the church.

Rev. A. L. Ragsdale, the pastor of the local Christian church, was in Maryville Monday in attendance at the Sunday school council for Nodaway county, of which he is a member. During the day, the entire county was divided in districts, and thoroughly organized for intensive training in the various Sunday schools of the county. Homer Carmichael of Burlington Junction was elected president of this district, and S. G. Williamson of Elmo, was elected vice-president, and Leon Severs of Burlington Junction was elected treasurer. This entire county organization is a move in the right direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox Alexander of this community were in Maryville Monday to spend the day and do a little shopping. In a conversation with Mrs. Alexander on the street in Maryville, she incidentally mentioned the fact that it was but a few more days until Santa would be coming this way, and she thought she had better get ready for his coming in time.

Miss Arvilla Staples has been confined to her home and room for more than a week with the flu. For a larger part of the time she has suffered to a considerable degree, but is now convalescent, and will be back at her place in Dr. Hindman's office within a few days.

Wheat's strength aided corn, which closed 2¼ to 2¾ cents up. Spot prices were 1 to 1½ cents higher.

Canada Has Air Fleet to Fight Forest Fires

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 1.—Radio, airplanes, and wireless telephones cut the toll of forest fires in Ontario to a minimum in 1926, according to a bulletin issued by the department of lands and forests.

Ontario maintains a fleet of sixteen hydroplanes which patrol the timbered areas daily says the bulletin. "Lookout towers equipped with radio transmitting apparatus and wireless telephones are located at strategic points. When a blaze is reported, airplanes carry forest rangers and fire-fighting equipment to the scene of the fire.
